

Has served, is serving and will serve

It's sort of a family thing. Although they never felt pressured from their family, Jason, Adam and Willie Greenman have, or will be, associated with the military.

Oldest son Jason, 28, has served his time. His service ended in October last year after having served three tours.

Adam, 21, is currently a field artillery systems and data specialist stationed in Fort Riley, Kan.

Youngest son Willie, 20, is scheduled to leave for basic training in late August.

Serving the United States runs deep in the family. "It goes back four generations," mother Sharon said. "That's all we can track," Adam added.

It wasn't until recently Kent and Sharon were able to say all three of their sons have served in the military. Son Willie just decided earlier this year. Oldest brother Jason finished eight years of service this past October and middle son Adam is currently in the middle of his service.

"I can't say I'm surprised," Sharon said of her boys serving their country. "I knew Jay (Jason) was going because that's all he ever talked about. Adam wanted it so bad he could taste it." Sharon said she just figured Willie would follow in the footsteps.

Kent served in the Army and was medically discharged. Both Kent and Sharon's fathers served, as well as the boys' great grandfathers. From there, it gets a bit difficult to track. Even Adam's wife, Laurette is serving.
