

Grubbs named School Psychologist of the Year

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Cynthia Grubbs was recently honored as the 2012 School Psychologist of the Year by the Colorado Society of School Psychologists. Grubbs accepted her award at an awards luncheon in Beaver Creek. The award was presented to Grubbs in appreciation of her endless efforts, energy and leadership given to school psychology.

Grubbs currently works as a school psychologist and special education coordinator for the Northeast Colorado BOCES in Haxtun; she's been employed with the agency since 1993. Grubbs was nominated for the award by Tamara Durbin, director of special education for the Northeast Colorado BOCES, in recognition of her strong leadership abilities, knowledge of effective educational practices and devotion to the school districts in northeast Colorado.

Grubbs resides in Sterling with her family.
