

Nearly all Coloradans given option to renew

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

More than 95 percent of Coloradans affected by cancellation notices for individual and small group health insurance plans in 2013 were offered the opportunity to renew their policies early and continue them into 2014.

“All companies, whether they offered early renewals or not, were required to inform consumers about all of their possible options, including shopping with another insurance company or through Connect for Health Colorado,” said Commissioner of Insurance Marguerite Salazar. “Our top goals remain ensuring consumers have health insurance coverage and have options.”

Insurance companies set their own deadlines for early renewals. As such, some deadlines may have already passed, while others may be coming up shortly. The Division of Insurance encourages consumers to read the notices sent by the companies or to contact their insurance company for more info.
