

You tell me

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Lynda Hagemann of Holyoke found a couple of interesting vegetables when she went searching through her garden recently. At right, this zucchini seems to have taken the shape of a sea horse, or some kind of bird or even a platypus. Below, this yellow tomato seems to have grown a nose.

With fall temperatures dipping lower and lower, it will only be a matter of time before gardeners stop picking fresh produce.

You tell me

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Holyoke Enterprise October 4, 2012