Touching on a variety of topics, a small acreage informational day is planned for Saturday, March 1 in Wray at the Buchannan Middle School gym, located at 620 W. 7th St.

Beginning at 10 a.m. and wrapping up at 2 p.m., the free event will offer information on what animals are best for those with a few acres, making soap and lotions, and growing grapes, herbs or a nice flower and vegetable garden.

This will be a booth event without any formal presentations or sales. There will be plenty of free information to pick up, plus the opportunity to visit with knowledgeable people.

Attendees will find information about a variety of interests. Come learn about picking the right tree for eastern Colorado and proper tree care and pruning. Discover what plants make good wildlife habitat, whether for butterflies and bees or birds and bunnies.
