

Ballyneal Golf Club recognized for groundwater stewardship

Written by Holyoke Enterprise

Ballyneal Golf Club has been recognized by The Groundwater Foundation as a 2014 Groundwater Guardian Green Site for its groundwater and environmental stewardship.

Ballyneal Golf Club earned Green Site designation based on responsible use of chemicals and water, pollution prevention and water quality.

2014 is Ballyneal Golf Club's third year of designation, as it was also recognized as a Green Site in 2010 and 2011.

"Green Sites, like Ballyneal Golf Club, can truly have a positive impact on the environment," said Groundwater Foundation program manager Jennifer Wemhoff. "The groundwater and environmentally-friendly practices they implement help benefit water resources, improve wildlife habitat, reduce stormwater runoff and responsibly manage potentially hazardous materials."

To read the full article, consider an e-Subscription. Call 970-854-2811 for details.

Holyoke Enterprise March 20, 2014